SHOW TRIVIA
Tales From The Darkside: "Hush"
(week of July 10th, 1988)

Buddy, an asthmatic boy stuck at home with this babysitter, Jennifer, while his mother goes out, invents things in what used to be his father's workshop. Most of them are toys made out of found items around the house, but Buddy's latest is his attempt to finish something that his father had started - a "noise-eater" which, with its ghastly and organic-looking mouth-stalk, sucks the "noise" out of anything that's making noise...but what it's actually doing is draining the energy from whatever is making sound. To Buddy and Jennifer's horror, that includes a caged bird kept by Buddy's mom: the noise-eater can drain the life out of living things too. Now they have to figure out how to escape the house and trap the noise-eater inside... and the biggest obstacle to that seemingly simple goal is Buddy's persistent cough.

SHOW TRIVIA
Friday The 13th: "Pipe Dream"
(week of July 10th, 1988)

Ryan gets a wedding invitation from his estranged father's new address, sent by his fiancée. Ryan and Mikki accept the invitation and Ryan and Ray Dillion stand face to face for the first time in years. Ray takes Ryan to his new workplace to show off the invention that changed his fortunes; Ryan is less than impressed to learn that it's a weapon. Mikki learns from Ray's fiancée that Ray's Uncle Lewis gave him a pipe, and Mikki suspects it's one of Uncle Lewis' cursed objects, though she can't convince Ryan of that...until she sees Ray dispatch his rival co-worker with her own eyes, using the pipe to kill the man with deadly poisonous smoke. But Ray also knows that she's seen something, making her his next target.
